Comprehension MCQ

Read the passage below and answer questions 34 to 38. Your answers must be based on the passage.

John would have suffered in silence if not for the fact that his teacher had given the class a talk on the dangers of abdominal pains. He had heard many horror stories about his friends' past experiences.

His teacher, Mrs Jamima, had mentioned before that the causes of such pain to the abdomen could be due to something as minor as an upset stomach from overeating or food poisoning to something major like having twisted intestines. It was at this time, fifteen minutes before recess, that John suddenly gave out a bone-chilling scream of pure anguish. He could no longer suppress the pain nor the discomfort he had been experiencing the whole morning.

In no time, John was rushed to the hospital in an ambulance. He was lying on a stretcher, zooming past all the traffic with sirens wailing and beacons flashing. Every jolt or knock felt like there was a volcano erupting in his stomach.

Here John was, waiting for his doctor. He imagined that the doctor would come to him wearing a surgical gown armed with a scalpel and all ready to open him up. However, what he saw next surprised him. A young lady walked into the waiting room full of patients. Dressed in a pink dress and with a pearty smile, she went up to him. She said, "Hi John, my name is Doctor Tan. Don't worry, we'll take real good care of you." Immediately the hospital did not seem like a bad place after all!

For each question, 4 options are given. One of them is the correct answer. Make your choice (1,2,3 or 4) and shade the correct option in the OMR provided.

favourite tourist destinations, which feature a host of animals in a jungle-like environment. A trip to the Night Safari promises to be both intresting and educational. You will learn about the animals' behaviour, their feeding habits and how they survive in the wild.

When interviewed, Mr Ong said that the company was slow in paying him his salary since he started work in November 1996. As a driver, he drew a monthly basic wage of $500 and was entitled to allowances for every trip he made.

His 23-year-old daughter and 19-year-old son, who were both still studying, had to watch their father scrimp and save whatever earnings he had during those difficult twenty-two months. Fortunately justice was served and Mr Ong received his hard-earned money, all $13 000 worth.
