Sam, Seng, Simone and Porky were spending the weekend with Granny. The children were excited as Granny's house was near East Coast Park and they could walk to the beach from her house.

After arriving at Granny's house, the children took their lunch and then took a slow walk to the beach as they felt they had eaten too much. They spent the whole day at the beach building sandcastles and flying kites. Granny sat under a big tree, reading her book.

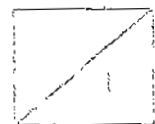

The children had such fun chasing each other, splashing in the water and playing in the sand. They hoped that the day would not end.

They went home happily, and to their surprise, they saw a tall man standing outside Granny's house. He was carrying a pink plastic bag.

"Uncle Jack!" Simone shouted happily. Uncle Jack was their favourite uncle. To the children's delight, Uncle Jack brought them a small yellow rubber boat. They blew up the boat and climbed in. To the children's surprise, the boat was big enough for them. After playing for a while, the children went back into the house and ate the tuna sandwiches, which Uncle Jack brought.

A long time ago in the Southern part of China, there lived a boy named Ping. He loved flowers and there was something special about this little boy. Anything he planted could bloom! He could plant flowers, bushes and even big fruit trees.

Everyone in the state loved flowers. One can find flowers everywhere in the state. Flowers were planted everywhere and anywhere, and the whole state smelled like perfume. The Emperor of the state loved flowers too. He enjoyed spending time tending to his own garden in the palace. However, the Emperor had a problem. He knew that he was not getting any younger and that he needed to find a capable successor to the throne.

Since he loved flowers so much, the Emperor decided to let the flowers solve his problem for him. The Emperor invited children from all over the land to his palace. He gave each child some special flower seeds. He said, "Whoever can show me the best plant in a year's time, will succeed me to the throne." The children did not know that the seeds could not grow at all.

Ping was very happy and excited to receive the seeds. He was sure that he could grow the most beautiful plant in the whole state. Ping took very good care of the plant, he watered it daily and waited patiently for his plant to grow. Day after day passed, but nothing grew in his pot. After one year, all the children ran to the palace, carrying pots of beautiful flowers. Only Ping turned up with his empty pot. The Emperor frowned when he saw the beautiful flowers from the other children. He finally smiled in relief when he saw Ping's empty pot.
